Loved the article

Dear Editor:

Your charming page on Archie Teater, my husband, was a pleasant surprise. As the bank teller said to me this morning when she received our check, "Oh, you're the Teaters! I loved the article, so Carmel."

The article was as friendly and sunny as the weather and the friends we have found since our arrival. Incidentally, it has been my experience on arriving in a new community that I bring big rains. May this continue.

Hospice inquiry

Dear Editor:

You recently had an article about the hospice and a group on the Peninsula interested in establishing one to help cancer patients live with pain and suffering.

I would like to know about the plans of this group, but unfortunately I cannot find that issue of the Pine Cone. Would you be kind enough to send me the address of anyone I can write to for more information.

We enjoy reading the Pine Cone every week. We both grew up in Carmel. I went there in 1926 and Hugh in the mid-1930s, so we really remember the good old days.

Uncle Scrooge

Dear Editor:

I was pleasantly surprised to see the advertisement (Pine Cone, Dec. 8) with the heading, "An Open Letter to Carmel's Senior Citizens." The ad was from a real estate insurance agency. It claims to have a plan that can help retired citizens who are in a bind due to constantly higher taxes on homes, inflationary pressures and inadequate incomes.

It is good to know that some business people are concerned with the plight of the elderly. I can only keep my fingers crossed until I hear from seniors who have visited the firm and acknowledge it really has something to help those in the Carmel area.

To more fully help the elderly throughout the nation, I feel federal and state governments must be dedicated to the following vision:

- 1) No tax on the home of anyone 65 or over who lives in it.
- 2) Those who occupy rented space in mobile home parks should be reimbursed by the government for that portion of their rent that includes a share of the property tax paid by the park owner. The government should lower the tax on the park, according to the number of seniors renting mobile home space there.
- 3) Seniors renting apartments should not have to pay a rental greater than one-sixth of their income. If a fair rental is above such an amount, the government should reimburse the senior citizen for the difference.
- 4) Many seniors prefer to rent small, efficiency apartments. Seniors are single persons or married couples. Most do not need a home of several rooms and cannot keep up with its maintenance. When will government see to it that such efficiency apartments are built on a vast scale so that all elderly citizens who desire them can rent them?
- 5) Senior citizens should be exempt from federal and state income taxes, or filling out the forms for such taxes if their incomes are moderate, say $15,000 or less, and pay very little taxes if incomes are above that amount but less than $25,000.

If necessary, let Uncle Sam cut out much of the foreign aid, astronomical spending for increasing stockpiles of armaments, billions for studying space, and the high living of statesmen.

Wake up, Uncle Sam! Stop being the Scrooge to your elderly folks!

Santa is ready

Dear Santa Claus:

How have you been doing? I can hardly wait when you come. We got our Christmas tree on the fourth and we decorate it on the 10th.

I bet your just about ready to go aren't you. Have a good trip!

Love you,

(Editor's note: Santa tells us he is doing fine, a bit weary though from working late into the night preparing for the ride to Carmel. He wanted us to tell you that Christmas Eve he will be visiting all the children in town and that he is sure your tree is one of the most handsome ones around.)

A thank you

Dear Editor:

Thank you very much for your excellent publicity of our 1977 Festival of the Trees.

All members of the committee and those of the museum board of trustees are very grateful for your kindness.

Fund started?

Dear Editor:

Would you please tell me if a fund has been started for a chapel at the Carmel hospital in memory of Bing Crosby?

I think it is a wonderful idea.

Eleanor Arell
Dedham, Mass.

(Editor's note: The idea was suggested Oct. 27 by Muriel McLaughlin in a letter to the "Pine Cone." According to Mrs. McLaughlin, Dan Searle, president of the Bing Crosby Youth Fund, has said he would present such a proposal to the fund board of trustees in 1978.)

Prep players

Dear Editor:

A recent program presented in the Robert Louis Stevenson auditorium by students of Carmel High School proved to be of unusual quality, and included dancing and singing, all given in a most unself-conscious manner and in gentle low key. Flute and voice solos, barbershop quartet, choir and modern dance made up a balanced program.

The staging was thoughtful and the entire evening seemed only too brief for the many admiring parents, grandparents, sisters, brothers and friends of the performers. The adults involved deserve praise. A prejudiced grandparent of one of the junior performers can only say, "Thank you!" with feeling.

About the cover

It was back in 1930 that the cover of the Carmel Pine Cone featured this striking rendering of the three wise men in search of the infant Jesus.

The picture, a linoleum cut, was published on Dec. 19, 1930.

To you, we hope it conveys our wish that you enjoy a Merry Christmas the old-fashioned way. Best wishes to you and yours from the staff of the Pine Cone!

One opinion

'A step into the bramble patch'

By DAVID HUGHES
Carmel City Councilman

ABOUT A YEAR ago, the Carmel City Council agreed to a moratorium on restaurants with bars so the Planning Commission could investigate the allegation that there were problems developing with the proliferation of bars and that restaurants with bars were becoming more bars than restaurants.

There has been no finding of fact that there is any kind of problem relevant to restaurants with full service bars with one exception. That restaurant, however, has never been cited for not living up to the conditions of its use permit and there is apparently no basis for that permit's revocation.

Instead, the Planning Commission has used this moratorium to stray far from the problems of bars and has come up with an ordinance which would make any new restaurant, or any restaurant which wished to move its location, pay the city an in-lieu parking fee of $13,750 for each four seats, or provide a parking space for each four seats. The city would not provide parking spaces for the fee assessed, but would add the amount to its funds. A 40-seat restaurant would have to pay $137,500 for what is, in effect, a license to operate. This would preclude the opening of almost any small restaurant since most small business operators don't have that kind of extra capital.

This ordinance passed its first reading Dec. 5 and will have its second reading probably on Jan. 3 and become law if it is passed then.

LET'S EXAMINE some points relevant to this ordinance.

First, there was no factual data given to support this ordinance's implication that the restaurants were prime causes of traffic or parking problems in town. There was no factual data given to back up statements that restaurants were demanding live entertainment or that our laws against live music were ineffectual. There was no evidence that restaurants were causing crime or problems in our city.

The statements made were backed up by inaccurate figures, wrong in some cases by the order of 10 times. A statement that "the average requirement statewide is one parking place for three seats" is not true and no effort had been made to check that statement.

There is no place an indication of where our present regulations are weak or where there could be a possible breakdown and certainly no reason given for prohibition of all new restaurants.

Second, there is no substantiation for the charge that restaurants cause a) demand for entertainment, b) intensified use of liquor, or c) abnormal traffic problems. There is no intent in the ordinance to provide any solution to traffic or parking problems in any way.

Third, Section 1342.4 of our code calls for the protection of the public welfare in the city. Our public includes the resident, and it also includes those who work in the city, those who visit the city and those who live nearby and consider Carmel their proper business and professional center.

The residents have the right and should exercise their duty to elect the council. The main concern of the council is the operation of the city in the way which will best serve to maintain the safety, welfare, beauty and general good of all the public and private property in the city and all the people's rights.

These rights include residents' rights to vote, and they also include property rights, professional and business rights, rights of those employed in the city, rights of visitation of beaches, parks and the commercial areas by adjacent residents and visitors, and that right to safety protection which our police and fire departments handle.

This ordinance, without any basis in fact, infringes on the right of legitimate business to operate within the framework of the city's codes by what amounts to a confiscatory fee levied against one class of business, for a stated purpose which the city has no intention of fulfilling.

FOURTH, THERE has been no economic impact study of this sweeping ordinance. Establishing a limited cartel by licensing, which is the end result of this ordinance, would tend toward diminution of quality and increases in prices. Restriction of competition will inflate prices on everything from a cup of coffee to a full meal for residents as well as visitors. There is always a fairly rapid turnover in ownership of restaurants. As these licenses are sold, they would become a part of overhead costs. The twofold effect of this would be to drive small, low-volume operations out of the city and to increase the higher profit margin operations which do not generally cater to local residents.

Fifth, if a restaurant did in fact find space in town to put in a 50-car parking facility for the use of one restaurant, the resulting paving would be strongly criticized. Carmel has always been a walking-oriented town instead of a wheels-oriented town, and we have not had to put up with the ugly parking facilities which have marred cities like Santa Cruz and Santa Barbara. It would be a shame to see this trend started here.

Sixth, the Planning Commission and the council should be looking forward to the next few decades. There will undoubtedly be increases in our adjacent population and

Herrick in City Council race

Second candidate to file disavows any group ties

A RETIRED 67-year-old professor who claim he will refuse support from any local political groups has filed to run for the City Council elections in March.

Dr. Francis H. Herrick, former president of the Carmel Citizens Committee and a nine-year Carmel resident, has elected to run for a two-year City Council term.

Only two other candidates have taken papers to file to date. Incumbent Helen Arnold announced she will file for a second two-year term. Howard Brunn, businessman and Old Carmel founding member, said he will seek a four-year term. Candidates can run for either a two- or four-year term.

The former Mills College professor says he is not running because he wants to.

"I am running because several leading citizens asked me to run," said Herrick.

There is another reason. "I have an interest in how Carmel is governed. I will not promise to bring the community and the council together, but my hopes are to try and work toward that."

"Matters of importance are being postponed and neglected by the City Council," he claims. Well-meaning councilmen, he says, are concentrating on symbolic issues rather than real issues.

He cited as an example the recent City Council scuffle over a sign in the council chambers.

"NO ONE PERSON is responsible for the quarrelsome and angry statements," he says, but he added that these public scuffles divide the community.

Herrick insists he will not accept political support from any local organizations. He refuses to run as a part of any political ticket. His campaign will be "low-key," he adds.

"If I am not elected, it will not be a traumatic experience. But I would not be in the race if I didn't think I could win," he says.

The new candidate refused to comment specifically about Mrs. Arnold's performance on the council. He did question some of her proposals as being "unsuitable" for Carmel.

"It is time to concentrate on the real issues," he says. Carmel's two greatest immediate needs are an ease to the parking problem and the purchase of a city corporation yard, he says.

The city has been lax in purchasing available parking, holding more than $128,000 in in-lieu parking fees. While the city holds onto the money, the price of property rises, he says.

"It is wrong to collect this money but not spend it on parking as promised," he says.

A city corporation yard, long a priority item in the city's general plan, has also gone ignored, he claims.

HOW DOES the candidate stand on other issues?

Parking—He opposes a multi-level parking structure in the city. He favors small lots such as the post office and library lots along the perimeter of the business district.

Recreation center—Herrick opposes the proposed $2.5 million recreation center adjacent to Sunset Center. He says the facility would serve few residents and attract nonresidents.

Flanders Mansion—Although Herrick claims he is not "committed" to any one proposal, he says he would favor selling the mansion if the revenues could be directed toward a "useful" purpose, such as low-cost housing for Carmel's elderly.

Tourism and growth—"I am opposed to the development of Carmel as a tourist center," he says. He says he opposes enlarging the Forest Theater and Sunset Center. Such growth will perpetuate tourism, he warns.

Restricting delivery hours—Herrick claims such restrictions would be nonsense. "Anything gained by afternoon restrictions will be lost by having trucks clog up the streets in the morning," he says.

DR. HERRICK was born in 1910 in Cleveland, Ohio. He did his undergraduate study at Western Reserve University in

The professor taught history from 1926 to 1965 at Mills College in Oakland. He is a former executive secretary of the Western College Association, an association that offers accreditation to many California universities.

He and his wife Mariam have two daughters.

Herrick was the president of the Carmel Citizens Committee from 1973 until 1975. He also is a supporter of the Carmel Foundation and was recently appointed to a Carmel ad-hoc library committee.

Parking perks for locals are debated

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

IN A TOWN that attracts cars like the Midway does kids, can residents be allowed special liberties when they find a place to park?

Three separate legal opinions say three different things: yes, no and maybe.

Another opinion is due Wednesday, Jan. 18. A report on preferred residential parking from the traffic committee of the Carmel Planning Commission is scheduled to be discussed then at the commission's 4 p.m. meeting.

For those who live in Carmel, the proposal would put them one up on the tourist. A resident could drive into town and park twice as long as the nonresident in most of the commercial district under the proposal by Councilman Mike Brown.

At the City Council meeting of Dec. 5, Brown said residents should be allowed two hours in a one-hour zone and 40 minutes in a 20-minute zone.

Converting two-hour zones into four-hour zones would be "a bit much," Brown admitted.

ONE CRITIC of the plan, Councilman David Hughes, said the concept would be a disservice to everyone.

"You would cut the parking services in town and make it more difficult for everyone to park," Hughes said. Available parking could be cut by up to 25 per cent, he said.

Not so, according to Brown. The extended parking would induce residents to come to town and shop, he claimed. He argued that it also would help business.

Carmel Mayor Gunnar Norberg seems to favor the concept, but he said it should be applied only in residential neighborhoods, not in the commercial district.

"The cry is from the people in the residential areas," Norberg said. Residents are hard pressed for parking spaces in front of their own homes, he claimed.

The U.S. Supreme Court has given reason to believe Norberg has the more workable idea.

In a decision handed down in October, the high court ruled that communities have a right to prevent commuters from parking in residential neighborhoods.

The ruling gave legal credence to a preferential parking plan adopted by the city of San Francisco six months ago.

But Brown seeks a law that would place nonresident restrictions in the commercial district, not in the residential areas.

Before Carmel adopts any new parking rules, City Attorney George Brehmer has warned the lawmakers to "be reasonable." The city attorney also cautioned the City Council to be careful when it names such a parking plan.

Is leniency constitutional?

"The words 'preferential parking' should not be used verbally nor in writing," Brehmer warned in a written opinion to the City Council delivered in October.

He also offered these recommendations in his report:

- The negative impact on residents and merchants should be itemized.

- The concept of "required parking" on private residential lots merits reconsideration.

- The city should encourage bus service from Peninsula hotels to the Carmel business district to reduce traffic.

- The impact of the regulations on the commercial district must be thoroughly evaluated.

How much is a parking space worth?

A parking spot in front of a Carmel home is worth some $23,000 in annual sales, Howard Brunn, owner of Carmel Bay Co., said at a December meeting of a mayor's committee appointed to study congestion caused by trucks.

The same spot in Monterey practically doubles in value. Each space represents $40,000 in gross sales, according to Bill Hyler, chairman of the Monterey Central Business Parking and Traffic Committee, a municipal advisory board in that city.

NO ONE KNOWS what residents would do with the extra parking time. The question is: Would residents spend dollars or time?

The counsel to the state legislature has said preferential parking ordinances are invalid.

In an opinion issued in April, Bion M. Gregory said the state vehicle code and U.S. Constitution prohibit them.

He said, "The streets of a city belong to the people of the state and every citizen of the state has a right to its use."

His legal opinion, however, was rendered more than six months before the Supreme Court ruling.

San Francisco will have two districts operating under preferential parking after Jan. 1.

One area is near the Daly City BART station in southwest San Francisco.

Signs there warn commuters not to park in front of homes. The ban has been in effect for six months.

"It is working very well, with few complaints," according to San Francisco Deputy City Attorney Philip S. Ward.

The complaints have been from angry commuters surprised when they received a ticket, he said. The fine is $10.

Residents buy small stickers to place on their front windshields. The permits costs $10 per car.

Residents without permits are treated like commuters. They are ticketed for parking in front of their own homes.

The major portion of San Francisco's North Beach section also has been designated for preferential parking after Jan. 1.

"I could conceive of a rationale for a preferential parking plan in Carmel," stated Ward.

A Christmas message

By the Rev. DAVID HILL
All Saints' Episcopal Church

A FEW DAYS ago, two people told me that they were considering moving away from Carmel. "It just isn't the way it once was," they said. I confess that at times I feel that way myself, having known Carmel since the days of World War II. The rapid expansion of the tourist industry with available intercontinental air transportation has indeed made changes in our town. But most of these changes (I'm not being judgmental) are part of our 20th-century life-style. Business and commerce are the dominant force in our living — similar in power, I believe, to the hold which the medieval church once held in villages and towns. Look at the most attractive new buildings on the Peninsula. Most of them are banks and savings and loan association offices. They are the cathedrals of today offering art, tapestries, trees and gardens, placed for public meetings and spots of quiet rest.

I think about this at Christmas. Amidst the year-end celebrations with food and drink, presents, warmth, friendship and love, many have an inner unease that all is not as it should be, nor as it once was. It often comes as a desire for greater simplicity and directness, for a sense of elevation above and beyond our natural living patterns.

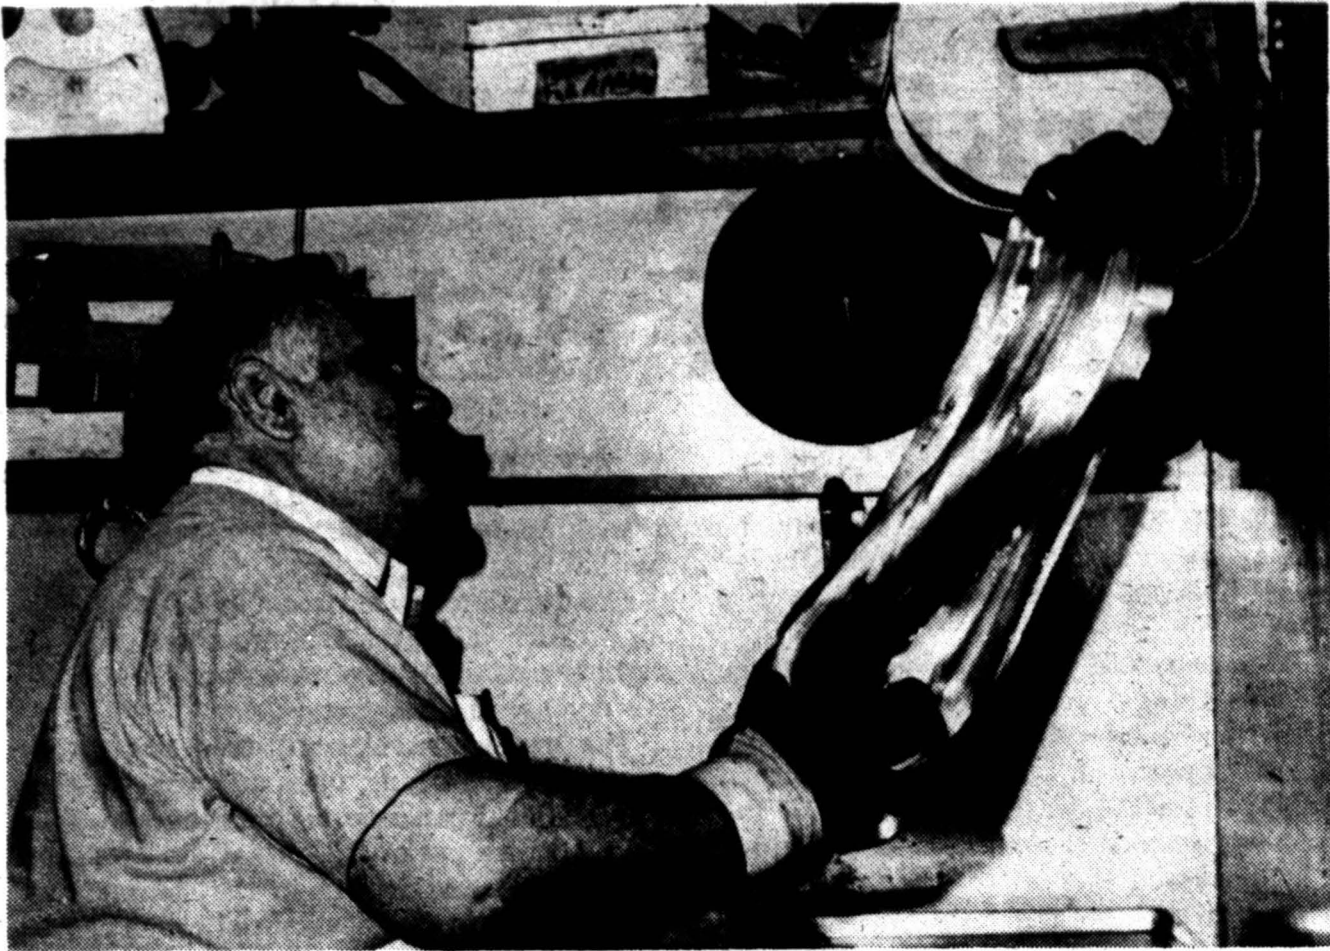

*"Men are homesick in their homes,
And strangers under the sun
And they lay their heads in a foreign land Whenever the day is done,"* wrote G. K. Chesterton.

Hanukkah and Christmas are year-end festivals of illumination. They focus upon remembering hard journeys and a search for warmth and comfort which were — and sometimes still are — only barely realized. These festivals are movements away from the ordinary and the familiar to the unknown. They recall historic times of loss and then a slow rediscovery of another life in life, or to use traditional language "a light in a darkened world." And these year-end festivals proclaim even more — the Creator moves into creation in a way of self-surrender, giving without assurance of receiving recognition. It was and is movement from what once was through something that was lost to something and somewhere new!

So, of course, my friends were right — in a way they may not then have realized. I hope so. My faith and commitment (and theirs too, by the way) is not merely in human processes and developments however splendid and rich materially and spiritually. We sing to the heavens that the Creator is with us now on this human journey.

*"To the end of the way of the wandering star,
To the things that cannot be and that are,
To the place where God was homeless
And all men are at home,"* wrote Chesterton.

Yes, Carmel has changed. And so have we. Onward we go together into a new year of grace and challenge. May we move with greater respect and sharing and giving of ourselves! GLORIA IN EXCELSIS DEO!

FIRST THE candy goes to the hook on the wall for a brisk tugging. This makes it hard and fibrous.

WITH A DEFT twist, the reds and greens wind down the hardening candy cane.

AFTER CUTTING in the stripes, Pete rolls the glob of candy over "just like a ham."

Candy cane man Frank Robotti

Candyman Pete Robotti works in a small kitchen in back of his store in Carmel, the Hansel and Gretel Candy Shop. Around Christmas, he is busiest making and shaping candy canes.

"We use at least 2,000 or 3,000 pounds of sugar during Christmas alone," said Pete, 58, who learned the craft in his family's candy store back in Stamford, Conn.

He and his son, Brian, 25, work together putting out the holiday season's supply. Pete has been doing it in Carmel for the past 13 years.

His most popular size is the 24-inch cane, but he has made them up to five feet long. "They get too fragile when they are that long," Pete said.

Ever wonder how the stripes get on the cane?

"You just put food coloring in a separate batch. Pull it like taffy, just like you do with the white peppermint candy. Then you cut it in lengths and place it on top of the white. When it's all together, you fold the whole hunk of candy over like a ham and twist it into the thickness you want," he explained.

PETE MEASURES the length against a yardstick, cuts it at 24 inches and bends the top of the cane. The job is completed. (George T. C. Smith photos)

'Bramble patch' ahead?

to our visitors from other areas.

Mayor Gunnar Norberg, in his approach, seems to be asking, "How do we get Carmel to be an isolated community of a few thousand people, separated from the rest of the world like a Rossmore or a Leisure World?"

The more germane question seems to be "How do we maintain and improve the residential quality of vital Carmel, and at the same time find a compatible way of handling the growing numbers of those who will visit us, whether from near or far away?"

This problem calls to mind the difference between the generally antiforeigner, often impolite, rapacious and sometimes downright nasty approach of Parisians to visitors, and the comfortable, pleasant, understanding and generally friendly approach of the Florentines, who maintain an intensely private life which coexists well with their flood of visitors.

THE PROBLEM of the development of method as an influence on character is one which Carmel should give some serious consideration. Who are our visitors? Are they the neighbors up the Valley or on the point, or are they from the East or from abroad? How do we want to appear to them, and what influence will this have on our own character and on the characters of our children?

This restaurant problem is a part of the larger problem, but attitudes solidify from partial actions.

To sum up, it doesn't seem that this ordinance is in the public interest; it will do nothing to provide parking; it will raise prices on all prepared foods; it does not address itself to the original mandate of finding how to prevent bars developing in restaurants; it would lead to a dictatorship by three members of any council of how many of what kinds of business would be licensed; and it is a step toward Mayor Norberg's expressed desire to make a bramble patch out of the commercial district.

There is a sound need to prevent the growth of bars in the city, but to do so by unsound ordinances will only give present and future councils more problems of a different kind.

Filling the holiday wassail bowl with a spicy Elizabethan recipe

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

OF ALL THE PLEASURES of holiday time, some of the most welcome are the tantalizing flavors and savors, the incense of spices emanating from the kitchen: roasting meats, baking breads, cakes, puddings and pies, the oven working almost as a perfumery, giving off waves of aromatic cinnamon, cloves and sugary caramel scents. And then there's the spicy wassail bowl! It's a custom centuries old. The Anglo-Saxon word brings back times when on Christmas Eve choirs went about singing carols, stopping at feudal castles or manor houses, and cottages, too. At each stop, as the carolers warmed themselves in great hall or rustic porch, the wassail bowl would be borne in, crowned with garlands of greens. The accompanying salutation was "Wes hall!" — "Be in good health!"

The wassail bowl can be filled with your choice of potables. There's as much tradition for warm woolly ale as there is for spicy, mulled wine laced with brandy, or rum concoctions. If there's snow outside and the ride through the countryside has been bone-chilling, the sips of hot grog in welcome cups are all the better for the sugar and spice.

Some years ago, when we found ourselves facing a wonderful white Christmas in our mountain chalet, we dug out of our files an old Elizabethan recipe for a wassail bowl. It promised roasted apples floating in rich, spicy wine. Not exactly the drink for before-dinner sharing, so we made it a midafternoon event all by itself. It can become a group endeavor. Portions of the recipe-making can be assigned, like coring the apples, preparing the sugar-spice syrup, uncorking the wines, polishing the wassail bowl, whatever.

Then it all comes together, savory and rich, tempting and satisfying to the last sips and swallows of the roasted apple, redolent of its bubbling brew. Here's the recipe:

ELIZABETHAN WASSAIL BOWL
 Apples, cored but not pared, sprinkled with powdered mace and roasted before the fire or oven baked briefly.

Spice syrup:

1 cup sugar
 1 cup water
 1/2 teaspoon grated nutmeg
 1 teaspoon powdered ginger
 1 teaspoon powdered cloves
 1 teaspoon powdered cinnamon

Bring all ingredients to a rolling boil in an enamel saucepan or large stainless-steel or nonaluminum container. Stir and reduce slightly.

Two fifths of Malmsey Madeira, or Golden Sherry (medium sweet). Add the wine to the spice-syrup and gently heat, but do not overheat. It should not even simmer.

In a large punchbowl preheated with hot water — possibly a silver one, possibly glass — break 6 egg yolks plus 3 egg whites and beat with a wire whisk until creamy pale and frothy. Slowly, starting a cup at a time, add the hot spiced wine to the egg mixture.

When all the wine has been added, float into the bowl the roasted apples. If the bowl is large, the apples may be halved crosswise, making 12 servings instead of six.

For the stout-hearted come in from the cold, a tumbler-full of good cognac or California brandy will not come amiss, warmed and added just before the apples. Ladle the drink into punch cups. The apples? For nibbling, speared with cocktail forks.

If all this seems a bit much, a simpler route to the welcoming wine bowl is with champagne. There are dozens of variations, but the following is sound, basic and reliable for about 20 servings:

CHAMPAGNE PUNCH

Place about 6 lumps of sugar in the punch bowl, sprinkle gently with bitters, adding 1 cup of good brandy or cognac. Muddle until the sugar is well dissolved. At serving time, add a block of ice and 3 bottles of very cold champagne. Use any champagne that suits your purse and palate, remembering, of course, that the better the champagne, the better the punch.

The sugar and the bitters do not make the recipe, nor does the brandy. Simplicity here is the keynote; it's almost like a champagne cocktail or a French '75. Recipes calling for a cheap wine base disguised by fruit garnishings, orange juice, ginger ale and so forth should be avoided like the headaches they are likely to induce.

The test for the wine ingredient in any recipe is easy: How does it drink by itself? If it can't pass that test with flying colors, move on to another choice.

Champagne Punch can be a delightful and gracious attraction in the glamorous garlanded setting of your wassail bowl. It doesn't have to be made with vintage Dom Perignon, but it should measure the test above to stay in keeping with holiday celebrations. "Be in good health!"

French envoy visits Carmel on mission for cultural exchange

WHEN YOU think of France, what comes to mind? Perfumes? Champagne? The Louvre?

There is a French stereotype and there also is a gentleman in an office in New York trying to change that image. His name is Andre Gadaud, the French cultural attache to the United States, ranking in the diplomatic world one rung under the French consular general. Gadaud visited the Monterey Peninsula last week, meeting with language scholars for lunch at the Beach and Tennis Club in Pebble Beach and for dinner at La Marmite restaurant in Carmel.

The dinner at La Marmite was attended by the heads of the French departments of the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies, the Defense Language Institute, Monterey Peninsula College and All Saints' Episcopal School. Guests included Jehanne Salinger Carlson, head of the Peninsula Alliance Francaise and the mother of Pierre Salinger, and Dr. and Mrs. Jack Kolbert, president of Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies.

While here, Gadaud began making arrangements for an exchange program for faculty and students of the Monterey Institute and the Graduate School of Administration, and the Institute of Political Science at the University of Paris.

Gadaud said the time was right for an expanded exchange program. He said that the anti-American feeling among the French no longer exists and that it arose through lack of communication and understanding. He said it started with stories in the press of such things as rude French taxi drivers.

He remarked that the same things could happen to a Frenchman coming to New York for the first time. As far as the exchange programs are concerned, he said he felt strongly that the French and Americans have a common advantage: "I think it's very good to get rid of the wrong stereotypes. When you are received into a family, you know the country much better, and you are well received. I can guarantee that. When a French family opens the doors, it's properly done."

GADAUD SPENT considerable time at the Monterey Institute of Foreign Studies discussing with faculty and students various aspects of French culture during his visit here. Kolbert commented, "I'm very glad to hear Mr. Gadaud give his conception of culture, that it isn't just the art and museums; it isn't just painting and sculpture, but it is every kind of creative activity. And this is what France is trying to do — break the image of a country that makes only perfumes and lace."

To follow through on his conceptions, Gadaud arranges tours for not only French ballet and opera, but contemporary cinema and experimental theater. He promotes new French philosophers and sponsors French film festivals.

"What we have in mind," he said, "is to show the American people that French culture is something very much alive, and that it does reflect an expanding cultural activity in France itself. Not only what we call beaux arts — old museums and the old castles, though we do spend a lot of money to restore them — but we are also promoting Beaubourg, the multibillion-dollar cultural center, the largest art complex built in the 20th century. We are also promoting contemporary music, experimental theater, experimental films, for that is really part of our activity and we want to show that image also."

GADAUD ISN'T involved in promoting French wines, but when asked which California wine is his favorite, he answers with considerable savoir-faire, "red wine, rather than white wine."

He is a "cultural attache," but aren't all foreign attaches really spies? Gadaud blushed and laughed. "Every diplomat has to report and we are supposed to report what we see and what is given us to see, you know? I must pay my respect to your country, which is a very open country, so we have a lot to report, but what I can tell you is that it is extremely interesting to live in this country."

This was the diplomat's first visit to the Monterey Peninsula, and he said, "It's better than what I've been told. I think it's a paradise."

He has gone on to Eugene, Ore., on diplomatic business, but left his hosts with the promise, "I will be back, the sooner the better." EGB

Padres the victors in their own tournament

By JAY POSNER

AFTER WINNING their own tournament for only the third time in 31 years, the Carmel varsity basketball team will take the week off before going to San Jose to play in the San Jose Invitational Tournament that starts next Wednesday.

The Padres claimed the local championship by winning three games in a row, the final game a 39-38 victory over Monterey, the second time in two weeks that Carmel defeated Monterey by one point.

In that final game, the Padres were led by tournament MVP John Frincke who scored 18 points, 12 in the second half. The Padres, now 7-2, led 18-14 at the half as Dave Stevenson scored six of his eight points. In the third quarter, the Padres jumped out to a 22-14 lead only to see the Toreadores come back to tie the game at 23-23 after three periods. With one minute left in the game and the score tied at 36, Monterey turned the ball over to the Padres.

Carmel worked for the last shot and with eight seconds left, the shot missed, but Monterey's Keith Walker, who scored 17 points, fouled Tom Frincke. Frincke, who had 11 points, made both free throws to give the Padres a 38-36 lead with six seconds left. The Monterey inbound pass was stolen by John Lucido who was fouled. Lucido sank one free throw, his only point of the night, to give Carmel a 39-36 lead with one second left. Monterey called time, and in an instant replay of a week ago, Padre coach Joe Feldeisen had all his men stand at halfcourt to avoid the three-point play. Monterey inbounded to Ken Gordon who sank a shot at the buzzer, but Carmel had its championship.

ON FRIDAY night, the Padres overpowered Pacific Grove, 68-48. The game was close for three quarters, but the Breakers ran out of gas in the fourth stanza as Carmel outscored Pacific Grove 20-11. The Padres led by only four, 38-34, midway through the third period, but Tom Frincke and Dave Stevenson combined for five points in less than a minute to put the game away. John Frincke had 21 points to pace Carmel while Tom Frincke had 14 and Dave Stevenson, who made the all-tournament team, added 12 points.

IN FIRST-round action, Carmel defeated Westmont High School of San Jose, 70-62, in a game that was much closer than the score indicates.

Will Wilkinson, a six-foot, three-inch senior who didn't start the game, led the Padres with 29 points and 18 rebounds. Westmont, which trailed 34-22 at halftime and 53-45 after three quarters, fought back to 57-55 with 4:30 left in the game. However, Wilkinson scored eight points in just over a minute to give Carmel a 68-60 lead and the victory. John Frincke, who averaged 18 points a game through the tourney, had 15 points and Tom Frincke added eight.

Spalding pro-am Tuesday

The $90,000 Spalding Invitational Pro-Am golf championship opens Tuesday at three Monterey Peninsula golf courses, including one of the two at Rancho Canada.

Among the field of 78 professionals and 78 three-man amateur teams will be Al Geiberger, George Archer, Rod Funseth, Forrest Fezler and Roger Maltbie.

The four-day pro-am precedes the opening of the new PGA tour each year. Play will be over the Laguna Seca Golf Ranch, Rancho Canada-East and the Corral de Tierra Golf and Country Club.

The 78 three-man amateur teams will play the first three rounds Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, then drop out for the final round when the club and touring professionals vie alone at Laguna Seca for the $90,000 purse.

Sponsored by Spalding, a giant in the golf industry, and the Monterey Kiwanis Club, the tournament donates all proceeds from ticket sales to charity. The entire $8 season ticket is tax deductible because the money will go to charity, said Tournament Chairman Howard Braunstein of the Kiwanis Club.

Mrs. Farmer grew up on the Monterey Peninsula, attended Pacific Grove and Carmel schools and later majored in philosophy at UC Berkeley. She is best known as a teacher of italic writing which she mastered after years of intensive study of illuminated manuscripts. More recently she has experimented with serigraphy using her design skills with bold color. The exhibit is of works suggested by the song of creation written in the third chapter of the Book of Daniel which was shouted out by three young Jewish boys, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego.

Museum hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m. every day except Monday. For more information, phone 372-4212.

Watercolor show through Jan. 4

By RICHARD TYLER
Director, Sunset Community and Cultural Center

THE EXHIBIT of the West Coast Watercolor Society continues its popular showing in the Marjorie Evans Gallery through Jan. 4. If you have not had an opportunity to see this excellent exhibition, plan to stop in any weekday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. A new exhibit opens Friday in the Friends of Photography gallery presenting the works of Ed Del Valle, Mirta Gomez, Harold Jones and Sean Kernan. The exhibition will run through Jan. 27. In the theater foyer, a weaving exhibition of Toni Jones will be on view. This show can be seen during all performances in the theater or by arrangement with the director's office.

THE SUCCESSFUL course Dance for the Theater, conducted by Janet Butler, will be offered again this coming season. This course is designed to introduce the actor to what makes movement dramatic in the theater. Through the development of various techniques, the student will gain strength and control to perform choreographed routines set to the sounds of the musicals of our times.

Ms. Butler has an extensive background in the musical theater, having trained in ballet, tap, jazz, modern and ballroom dance — presenting the vital elements which they all share on the stage. This eight-week course for $25 will be offered on Tuesday nights starting Jan. 10 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Call to register at 624-3996.

It is interesting to note that among Mayor-elect Edward Koch's proposals and promises regarding the arts in New York are:

- The consolidation of public and private organizations that are currently supporting the arts in the city.
- Revision of city income tax returns allowing a $1 to $10 donation to the arts.
- Utilize the halls and lobbies of city buildings for art exhibits and raise the money to assist the City Walls projects.

'Nutcracker' on stage at King Hall

The Oakland Ballet Company will present the delightful Christmastime classic The Nutcracker for two performances at King Hall of the Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey, Tuesday, Dec. 27, at 3 and 8 p.m.

Tchaikovsky's ballet is the story of a little girl named Clara who receives a wondrous nutcracker as a Christmas gift from a mysterious toymaker named Mr. Drosselmeyer. When Clara slips downstairs during the night, she discovers a battle between the mice and toy soldiers and hits the fierce Mouse King on the head to save the life of her beloved nutcracker.

The nutcracker, who has begun to look very much like a prince, bows and invites Clara to the Candy Kingdom as a reward.

There she meets the Sugar Plum Fairy, who, when she hears that Clara has saved the Prince's life, orders a festival in her honor. Everyone comes to the festival — the ribbon candy dancers, wood nymphs, the Spanish dancers, a Turkish magician, Mother Goose, Morning Rose and the sugar flowers of every color — and the celebration concludes with the magical Grand Pas de Deux by the Cavalier Prince and the Sugar Plum Fairy.

The Oakland Ballet production will feature colorful costumes, elaborate sets and a company of 30. A growing Christmas tree, beautiful snowflakes, mice, Arabians, Russians and a garden of roses will add to the magic of the event.

General admission is $4. For tickets, phone 373-5522.

Back-to-land lecture Saturday

Helen and Scott Nearing, whose book Living the Good Life has become an underground classic among pioneers in the back-to-the-land movement, will present a lecture entitled Living Simply and Simply in a Troubled World Saturday, Dec. 23, 8 p.m. at the Pacific Grove Art Center, 568 Lighthouse Ave., Pacific Grove. Everyone is welcome to attend the free program sponsored by the Unitarian Church.

The Nearings will also autograph copies of their books Friday, Dec. 23, noon-2 p.m. at the Thunderbird Bookstore in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel.

Dr. Nearing, now 94 years old, is still in excellent health. He and his wife live on a simple vegetarian diet, raising most of their own food on their Maine farm. They have just completed a brief lecture tour in India and will speak in Marin and Sonoma Counties and in San Francisco during their annual tour.

JEWELRY HANDCRAFTED FOR YOU ...

OUR UNICORN is far less elusive but every bit as wonderful as the mythical creature, hand-forged in solid silver, with mysterious opal eyes, to brighten your day whenever he catches your eye. (The Topanga artist creates equally enchanting dolphins.) SILVER BRACELETS by Lee Taplinger are comfortable to wear, lovely to look at and reasonably priced.

TWO RINGS sculpted in 18 karat gold by Karl Lee of Big Sur embrace bright diamonds as naturally as they embrace your finger.

WEDDING RINGS by Karl Lee are handmade — not cast — of 18 karat gold in a variety of designs that convey the eternity of love with simple understatement.

THE WINGED SCARAB is both symbolic and beautiful, combining the metaphysical properties of silver, copper and gold with lapis lazuli, carnelian and handmade heishi beads. The craftsmanship, by silversmiths from Santa Fe, New Mexico, rivals the ancient Egyptians.

IF YOU'VE come to Carmel expecting to discover quaint, charming little restaurants serving unusual, European cuisine, we have good news. The Alpine Inn, tucked away at the end of the Paseo San Carlos on San Carlos St. between Ocean and Seventh Aves., fits the description perfectly.

It's tiny, with a total seating capacity of barely 20; it's quaintly decorated with traditional Swiss print curtains and cushions; and it serves Swiss/German/European food prepared by a talented young European chef.

Because the Alpine Inn is so small, and because it serves unusual dishes, the dinner menu is limited to three entrees each evening, served as complete dinners for a fixed price. Dinners include cheese fondue, salad, fresh vegetables, bread and butter in addition to the main course. The only other items on the menu are appetizers, beverages and three intriguing desserts. Incidentally, each week's menu repeats through the month, so you can plan a return visit in advance.

A good cheese fondue is served immediately after the menu is presented so you can snack and read simultaneously, and we guarantee you will finish the fondue down to the very last drop.

As might be expected, the Alpine Inn serves a good number of veal entrees, fresh fish, seafood and poultry. The well-rounded menu also offers beef and lamb, frequently prepared en brochette.

We dined on a Thursday, when the menu offered Kassler Rippchen und Sauerkraut, Fresh Snapper in Herb Sauce and Jagerschnitzel. Random samplings from the October menu include Duck Robespierre stuffed with sauteed apples, Swiss style Paprika Schnitzel, Lamb Chops in Mint Gravy, Filet of Sole Meuniere and Scallops in Lobster Sauce.

LORE PARSONS, who presides over the Alpine Inn and who is a native of Germany, deserves special praise for her wonderful Swiss-style dinner salad which is served in an oversized glass goblet. It contains green and black olives, fresh mushrooms, cucumber, tomatoes, red onion rings, artichoke hearts, hard-cooked egg, parsley and dill, all lightly tossed in a mild, flavorful dressing.

Translations of the Thursday entrees gave us smoked roast pork with sauerkraut, fresh Monterey Bay red snapper and a "hunter's schnitzel" of veal with some very interesting vegetables.

Each dish is presented in a copper pan, barely moments from stovetop or oven, and the food is fresh and hot.

Our serving of smoked pork slices was generous and the ruddy-red pork was tender and tasty. Homemade sauerkraut — a far cry from the canned variety — was accompanied by whipped potatoes.

A dining companion ordered the snapper, which was served with home-fried potatoes, fresh carrots, and green beans. Garnishes of parsley, pimiento, lemon slices and black olives made the plate especially attractive. An unusual sauce, seasoned with thyme, basil, oregano and bay leaf, turned the simple fish into a most interesting dish.

We also sampled the Jagerschnitzel, made of a tender boneless veal cutlet topped with oranges, stuffed green and black olives and the traditional "jager" accompaniments of lots of fresh mushrooms and tomatoes; the dish is the German counterpart of the French Veal Chasseur.

Dessert fans will find the Schwarzwald Kirschtorte, many thin layers high, the Apfelstrudel and the Kaiser-schmarren eminently satisfying, as is the rich, spiced coffee.

The Alpine Inn also serves delightful lunches, both indoors and on the patio. It is open daily and reservations are strongly advised.

A jinx on performers en route to Sunset Center?

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

YOU NEVER KNOW what might happen at the Carmel Festival of Dance. The second traction of the season, the Tziganka dance troupe, was involved in a horrible automobile accident in Florida and was forced to cancel its entire American tour. And then in last Saturday night's program at Sunset Center, it turned out that principal dancer Frank Ohman was not here because a few days ago he slipped in the snow in Syracuse and broke his arm. (Ohman slipped in the snow in Syracuse. Sounds like choreographer Ohman just might capitalize on this bad experience.) And, as if Ohman's accident weren't bad enough, his replacement, David Anderson, suffered a bone-jarring fall during one of his solo numbers. These things quicken the heart. As to Saturday's program, four dancers from the New York Dance Theater performed a variety of solos and ensembles that revealed the many facets of the company's repertoire and creativity. It was mostly an excellent program and built to a very satisfying conclusion.

When the curtains opened, Judith Shoaff and James Dunne danced a solo each and then a duet from The Nutcracker. Both dancers displayed fine technique, though these openers showed a little of that stiffness that is common with openers. Miss Shoaff was graceful and charming in the Chinese dance.

Linda Yourth and Anderson then appeared for a pas de deux from Flower Festival in Genzano. The number was really a set of solos framed at beginning and end with duets. As the evening progressed, the dancers grew warmer and more at ease, but even here Miss Yourth showed a marvelous mix of grace and presence. It was in his first solo that Anderson lost his footing on a tight turn and fell heavily to the stage. After he recovered, and at the end of the number, he flashed a smile that reassured us he was all right.

Shoaff and Dunne then danced Anderson's One Time set to the third movement of the Ravel String Quartet. This was a stylish love dance that had many attractive features, but the choreography seemed a little busy for the music. Ohman's Melodie, a pas de deux to Tchaikovsky's None but the Lonely Heart, was then danced by Yourth and Anderson. This was graceful and natural dancing, romantic and free from choreographic contrivances that stood out in the previous number.

TCHAIKOVSKY'S Waltz Scherzo was a trio choreographed by Anderson and danced by Shoaff, Yourth and Dunne. This scene was specially created by Anderson for this program and was lovely and very graceful. In turn, this was followed by To Vernon, one of the evening's most interesting events. It was a contemporary-styled solo by Anderson that achieved a high degree of emotional intensity and revealed Anderson as a creative artist of great talent, presence and expression. The music was a free expression narrative in pop-folk style by Judith Lander. It was a poetic reflection on the influences that shape our perceptions and feelings about ourselves and our society. Anderson mixed a free expression with moments of choreographic imagery. The piece was unique on the program and was stylish and distinctive.

Shoaff and Dunne then returned for Serenata, a romantic pas de deux set to a movement from the Dvorak Serenade for Strings. And the program's last number, and a highlight of the evening, was Windmills, a quartet by Anderson that was set to movements from the Alexander's Feast Concerto Grosso by Handel. In this piece, Anderson has mixed elements of classic dance with elements of modern dance, liberally spiced with street bumps and other charming vulgarities. It was a delightful spoof that was at once graceful and bawdy. I dare say even Handel would have enjoyed it and the small girl to my left laughed out loud.

The next dance concert at Sunset Center, God willing, is Jose Molina's Bailes Espanoles on March 16. A late-breaking attraction is the Sunset Center appearance on Jan. 14 of the San Jose Youth Symphony featuring the young virtuoso pianist Jeffrey Swann.

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Choral Society Christmas program, as presented earlier this month at the Carmel Mission, will be broadcast on Christmas Day at 8 p.m. on KWAV-FM, 96.9.

New wells needed in lower Valley, state report says

Supervisor Farr warns of conflict between drilling, water recycling

By JIM BARRETT

ADDITIONAL WELLS in the lower Carmel Valley will be needed to supply Monterey Peninsula water users if the drought continues, the State Water Resources Department said in a report issued Monday.

No new limit was suggested on the "safe yield" of the aquifer, the underground water reservoir along the Carmel River, however. In a 1974 study, the state department established the limit at 15,000 acre-feet a year. The updated study said, however, an estimated 20,000 acre-feet lies in the aquifer.

Water concentrations are heaviest in the western or lower Valley, nearest to Carmel Bay, the brief, two-page report said.

"The report concludes what most everybody thought," remarked County Supervisor Sam Farr, who represents the Carmel area. "There is a lot of water around La Canada (golf courses) and the water is high in iron content."

Most wells in the lower Valley are privately owned, he said. California-American Water Co., with yield from its wells diminished farther up the Valley, has signed a contract to buy water pumped from wells owned by Nick Lombardo, the golf course owner, Farr said. Water from many private wells in the Valley has been used principally for irrigation in the past.

"If water from the wells there is used for domestic purposes, that will present a conflict for the Carmel Sanitary District. One of the alternatives the district has considered for recycling wastewater is to use treated effluent to recharge the aquifer," said Farr. The concept has been considered because the wastewater would be cleansed as it sinks to the aquifer. Farr said such recycling probably would not be permitted by health authorities.

THE OTHER problem is that if more wells are put in that lower Valley area, there is an increased threat of seawater intrusion," said Farr.

Intrusion could contaminate groundwater in the area. The report said groundwater levels are well above sea level and it minimized the threat of intrusion. The underground table was 10 to 47 feet above sea level during the past summer along the crucial five-mile stretch of Valley nearest Carmel Bay. The reported levels had dropped three to 16 feet below those recorded by the department in 1973.

Findings in the report were based on the drilling records from 110 wells along the Valley aquifer, said Carl L. Stetson, district chief for the Water Resources Department.

Stetson wrote in his conclusions to the report, "The water needs of California-American's service area can be met in 1978 if the drought continues, provided that the present water rationing plan continues in effect, that additional wells are located downstream from the present well field in Carmel Valley and that current production from Seaside wells is maintained."

The department reported that the Seaside wells could continue to yield as much water as they did in 1977, if not more.

THE REPORT was sought by the Zone 11 Water Advisory Board and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management Agency. The two boards have scheduled a meeting on Monday, Jan. 9, to discuss the Water Resources Department report, according to Manuel de Maria, chairman for the Zone 11 panel.

He said the advisory panel probably would recommend that more wells be allowed in the west end of the Valley in view of the report's findings.

The verdict from Toyland: Farrah spurned for Slime

By BRUCE HOROVITZ

LOOK OUT before you reach into your Christmas stocking Sunday. It could be filled with green slime.

An oozing green product made by Mattel Toys called "Slime" could be Carmel's most popular stocking-stuffer, the word is from Peninsula merchants.

The slippery stuff sells like hotcakes at $1.49.

"I didn't want to stock the stuff, but everyone kept asking for it. In the past two days, I've sold two dozen," said one toy store manager from the Carmel area.

The can it comes in is full of warnings. The slime sticks to rugs. It tangles the hair. And even dry cleaning will not remove the stains it makes.

If the green glop doesn't sound crazy enough, how about handing your child a $15 piece of paper Christmas morning?

Many of you will do just that and your kids will love you for it.

The piece of paper is a gift certificate for a doll set six months away from mass production. It will feature the Star Wars characters from the record-breaking movie.

IMAGINE SELLING a product before it is manufactured," said an amazed Jim Holland, owner of the Wooden caught the Christmas fancy of many Carmel residents, according to one toy store owner.

Collectors of miniatures already have grabbed up almost all the three-foot-high, wooden Victorian dollhouses at the Wooden Horse.

You can pick one up for $50 to $250. You also can fill up the three stories and nine rooms in some of the houses with miniature decorations, such as a handmade, six-inch piano for $60.

Why are miniature creations so popular? There are plenty of adult collectors, said Holland, who thinks it has a lot to do with nostalgia.

Do-it-yourselfism is a blossoming craze at another Carmel toy store. Paint Your Own T-Shirts (shirt and paint included for $6) is the Christmas craze at Thinker Toys in Carmel Plaza.

The kit is like a paint-by-number set, except the backdrop is a shirt instead of a canvas, according to Billie Rookaird, a store manager.

"All the toys are selling better this year," said one toy man.

"I've been away for just two days," he said, pointing to the Christmas-rush disarray. "You'd have thought Santa himself was here."

HOW TO PLAY with "Slime" is demonstrated by Vanessa Share, 9, of Big Sur. Vanessa said she comes to Carmel to do all her Christmas shopping. A can of the newest toy rage costs $1.49.

Horse, on Dolores and Seventh.

Kenner Toys has locked up all production rights. Even the firm that sells the certificates has run out of certificates, Holland added.

"Most of the parents don't even know what they are buying. The certificate says 'Star Wars' on it, so they just buy them," Holland said.

If you are looking for a last-minute way to stretch your Christmas dollar, you might want to investigate another Kenner creation for $14.99.

"Stretch Armstrong" looks like Mr. America, but his rubber body pulls like taffy. This foot-long rubber doll can stretch four feet if you tug hard enough.

But don't tug on the "Six Million Dollar Man" doll. Even he has his limits. The television wonderman sells for $11.88.

NOT ALL THE television stars are making waves in toyland.

The Farrah Fawcett-Majors doll is a flop. The likeness of the former star of Charlie's Angels is such a turkey that one store has knocked $3 off the price.

The same goes for Donny and Marie Osmond dolls.

The third most popular adult hobby in the country has STRETCHING THEIR Christmas wish are brothers Ricky, 8, and Joey, 5, Odenbrett, of Marina. An adult arm restrains Joey.

PRESENT THEIR
RAIN GUTTER

"FACTORY ON WHEELS"

Pictured here is our remarkable new machine making continuous rain gutters on a job in Pebble Beach. It's the only machine of its kind on the entire Monterey Peninsula.

This amazing equipment can roll out seamless strips of gutter any length up to 980 feet! No seams mean better appearance, better draining, easier cleaning, no joint leakage.

What's more, the material is long-lasting aluminum which will not rust, with a fine protective coating of bonderized paint (like an enamel, applied under high pressure) both inside and out.

Expensive? Not at all! The cost for this extraordinary rain gutter is comparable to ordinary types of galvanized metal gutters which rust out in very few years.

So give us a call. Our skilled craftsmen will quickly and expertly produce and install this great new gutter right on the job for you. Remember... it's aluminum and will not rust.

PARTY PLANS

By PHYLLIS JERVEY

Around this holiday time, it is wise to keep a well-stocked pantry shelf to use for an expandable luncheon or supper party. Extra guests are apt to pop in any time and so you won't look or feel perturbed, we suggest these quickly prepared recipes.

Shrimp Frankfurter Nibbles

These hearty hors d'oeuvres require no hectic last-minute preparation. Make a Seafoam Dip (see below). Using canned shrimp, rinse them along with canned frankfurters which you slice and marinate in dry white wine in the refrigerator. Just before serving, spear with red and green toothpicks. Pile them in a scrubbed, polished abalone shell.

Seafoam Dip

Cream 1 package cream cheese until fluffy. Blend in 1/2 cup bottled mayonnaise with some dehydrated parsley flakes or your own chopped chives. For a nonalcoholic drink, have you ever tried cranberry juice with beaten egg white served cold? Very refreshing.

Shrimp-Scallop Appetizer

Cover canned shrimp with ice water letting stand 5 minutes. Drain. Fry 1 pound washed scallops in deep fat until golden brown. Arrange in chafing dish with shrimp on one side and scallops on the other side. In center, put a cup of cocktail sauce made up of chili sauce, chopped celery, lemon juice and freshly grated horseradish. Salt, paprika to taste.

From the Hotel Mayflower in Washington, D.C., where I lunched frequently, we enjoyed Canton Chow. Here's the recipe:

Canton Chow

Fry 2 small heads of green and red, shredded cabbage in a little oil. Add 1 cut onion with cans of sliced mushrooms, as many as the budget permits. Now a can of bean sprouts. Shred meat from a barbecued chicken. Season to taste. Add peeled and sliced water chestnuts last 4 minutes. Serve with plain boiled white rice. Here in Carmel, we use the converted kind always on our shelves. Add soya sauce at the table to everyone's individual taste. Be sure that everything is piping hot. Nothing could be more dreary than this tantalizing dish served lukewarm. One can telephone ahead and have a bountiful take-out from Carmel's only Chinese restaurant, the Canton.

In Hawaii, this is what spells a Merry Christmas:

Salad Mele Kalikimaka

Arrange one slice of fresh or canned pineapple on lettuce leaves. A sprig of watercress put on pineapple representing holly leaves and halves of maraschino cherries set in the cress are holly berries. Fill center of ring with whipped cream or cottage cheese.

To go with the above, make a Rock Lobster Sauce from 2 cans lobster meat. Add olive oil in mini amounts with dried parsley flakes. This is quite de luxe.

Green Beans with Dill Sauce

Melt 3 tablespoons butter, 2 teaspoons crushed dill seed and combine. Simmer 5 minutes. Place 2 packages frozen french green beans in saucepan with 1/2 cup boiling water with salt to taste. Simmer 10 minutes. Drain and pour dill butter over. Serve right off for six.

Lamb Kidneys

These should be stripped of all fat. Split them lengthwise after soaking them in cold salt water to taste, then wipe dry with absorbent toweling. Saute over low heat in butter turning several times until done. This will form a caramel from which to make a lovely gravy. Thicken to right consistency until a rather thin sauce is formed. Season with Worcestershire sauce, salt and pepper, sherry. Return kidneys and simmer briefly.

This is always served over hot white rice. Mrs. Franklin Delano Roosevelt gave me this homey, yet popular, recipe which she prepared herself when the children were at home in the White House or at their personal retreat at Hyde Park.

Community Services Department has promised to insulate attics in 150 Peninsula homes in 1978, according to Amelia Romero, a department aide.

Besides insulating the attic, they will also repair broken windows, provide weather stripping and fill in cracks.

The department requires the homes be occupied by their owners. Senior citizens and handicapped will receive priority for service.

Applicants must fall into these annual income guidelines issued by the Community Services Administration:

Family of one, $3,713; family of two, $4,913; family of three, $6,113; family of four, $7,313; family of five, $8,513; and family of six, $9,713. For larger families, add $1,200 for each additional member.

The department will request to see your 1977 property tax bill or your W-2 income tax form.

If it does insulate your home, the department also will request access to your utility bills until 1980. This will help them to determine the energy saving of the insulation, the department said.

Work will be performed by employees hired under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act aid-to-jobless program.

For information or an application contact the Monterey County Community Services Department, 15 W. Gabilan, Salinas, or telephone 1-758-3381.

Mrs. Saulsbury joins Altrusans

Emily Saulsbury, a Carmel real estate agent, was welcomed as a new member of the Altrusa Club of the Monterey Peninsula when the club met early this month for its Christmas party at the Carmel home of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Morain.

Initiation service was conducted by Patricia Peart, assisted by Jane B. Hexter and Dr. Iona Logie, Mrs. Saulsbury's sponsors, and Mrs. Cyril Church, of Pacific Grove, the membership chairwoman.

A potluck buffet was served by Mr. and Mrs. John B. Gore, of Pacific Grove. The Altrusa Club brought its year to a close with a contribution of $200 to its Grants-in-Aid program, which provides scholarships to women from other countries pursuing advanced degrees in the U.S.

Teacher hosts party for students

A group of residents at Carmel Valley Manor enjoyed the hospitality of one of their teachers Friday. Norbert Kammer, who teaches courses there on human relations, nutrition and problems of aging, invited some of his students to a party at his house, something he does about twice a year.

"I share their space every week," said Kammer, "so I thought it would be nice for them to share mine."

Kammer's students range in age from 80 to 95.

The house at which the party took place, at Lincoln and Third in Carmel, is constructed from bits of various residences that were once the Carmel Foundation. It is completely handbuilt, said Kammer.

Backgammon

by Omar Sharif

Black rolls 5-1. How should he play?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

Black has already borne off two men, so a gammon does not enter into our calculations. He is way ahead in the race, yet he is not a favorite to win.

Black has no choice with the 5—he must advance his man on the White 8-point to the Black 12-point. It is now within easy reach of the two White men in Black's outer board. The question is how best to play the 1. Since White has a formidable home board, he would become a strong favorite were he to succeed in hitting the Black blot.

In a previous column we discussed that, if you must leave a direct shot, the closer you are to the opponent's man, the more difficult it is for him to hit you. If we were to follow through on that principle, we would advance to the 11-point.

If Black played that way, he would be hit by all 4's, 3's, 2-1, 2-2, 1-1 and 5-5, for a total of 25 rolls of a possible 36. In other words, White would be a 2½ to 1 favorite to hit the blot. That is worse than remaining on the 12-point where White would hit 24 combinations, or be only a 2 to 1 favorite.

But Black has a still stronger move available. He should hit the White blot on the 1-point. True, this leaves Black with a second blot, yet it reduces his chances of getting hit.

First of all, White would not reenter with 4-3, 4-2, 3-2, 2-2, 3-3 or 4-4. And White, to hit a Black blot, would have to roll a 1 or specifically 5-4, 6-4, 6-5, 5-5 or 6-6. That reduces the number of rolls with which White would hit to 19, while 17 would miss. Now White is only a slight favorite to hit a Black blot, and if he does not succeed in hitting, his chances of being gammoned have risen considerably, for now Black should hit a second White blot and succeed in closing his 1-point.

Remember When?

50 years ago

From the Pine Cone, Dec. 23, 1927:

LETTERS TO DEAR SANTA CLAUS:

Hon. Santa Claus:

Please send Carmel more governor's receptions, more official ambassadors and ministers plenipotentiary. Plenty enough.

Signed, The Hon. Mayor

Dear ol' Santa ol' pal of mine:

I believe in you Santa. I know there is a Santa Claus, 'cause I saw it in a full page ad in the Pine Cone. Please bring me a closet for my skeleton. Also a whistle. That's all. Bye-bye.

Hal Bragg

Dear Santa Claus:

I want some toys — a whole lot of toys, 'cause I want to make a play yard. Bring me a little spade and bucket so I can plant real trees, and dig wide streets, and romp around like Peter Pan.

Charlie Cheney

Dear St. Nick:

I am a little girl who has been a good little girl this Christmas. I can sit still for five terribly long minutes and not say a single tiny word. All I want for Christmas is a subdivided mountain. I'm good to my little doggy, too.

Sara Deming

Santa Claus:

Appeal to heaven for a jury. Send seven wise men.

The Carmel Art Association

25 years ago

From the Pine Cone, Dec. 26, 1952:

MAYOR GRANTED THREE WISHES

According to an old Carmel tradition established this week by the Pine Cone, the mayor of Carmel is allowed three wishes for the benefit of the town on New Year's Day.

Mayor Horace P. Lyon was informed of his privileges and asked what was his pleasure.

The mayor said he needed 33 wishes, not three.

Among his wishes, "Trees growing where telephone poles now grow, and some relief for Ocean Avenue traffic by improving Eighth Street and Fourth Street, possibly making Scenic one-way from Ocean to Eighth, and something done to equalize the exemptions to the sales taxes."

A LOW FIRE LOSS YEAR

If you didn't mention it in your Christmas card to the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department, you might bring it up in a New Year's greeting, or spell it out on a cake: $1,150.

This year's fire loss in Carmel was the lowest in eight years. There were 18 fires, only one of which made sufficient headway to boost the damage into four-figure brackets, that at Carl and Chan's.

CARMEL ACHIEVEMENTS '52

Absorbing issues were faced by the City Council this year. Among these were a prolonged and detailed salary revision which necessitated several revisions.

Also, a tentative outline of street projects to be carried out under the major street improvement fund.

An infinite variety of matters came up from time to time; woodpeckers damaging houses; storm water destroying lawns and gardens; tree roots breaking sidewalks and smog threatening the county.

From the Pine Cone, Dec. 28, 1967:

CANNERY ROW FIRE NO. 3 UNDER INVESTIGATION

How much of Cannery Row will go up in smoke is the question on many Peninsular tongues, now that the third fire of the season has been extinguished.

This time there were definite evidences of arson involved and an investigation is now under way. A representative of the insurance carrier of the building seems to think that a pyromaniac is loose in Monterey.

According to the Carmel Volunteer Fire Department, they were not called out on this Christmas Eve fire which caused about $250,000 of damage, because the dispatching service overlooked them during the emergency.

TRADITIONAL TREE BURNING

On Jan. 5 at 6 p.m. there will be the traditional Twelfth Night tree burning on the beach below 13th Street.

The whole town is invited to bring their Christmas trees for the great bonfire.

My name is Jack Head. I'm the Pacific Telephone Manager for this area.

Consumer Savings for Christmas:

☆ Look up long distance and local phone numbers well before the holidays so you won't have to call Directory Assistance, especially during the business period.

☆ Dial all long distance calls rather than spend more money going through an operator. You can save a bundle by doing it yourself.

☆ Dial long distance calls all day on Christmas Eve, Saturday, Dec. 24, rather than on Christmas Day when circuits will be busier than on any other day of the year.

☆ Lowest rates start at 11 p.m. Friday, Dec. 23 and continue through Sunday, Dec. 25 until 5 p.m.

☆ On Monday, Dec. 26, Holiday rates prevail: On intrastate calls within California, call from 12 a.m. to 5 p.m. for lowest rates, and from 12 a.m. to 8 a.m. on out-of-state calls. Between 8 a.m. and 11 p.m. Monday, low evening interstate rates apply.

Holiday poems

The Gift of Love

I have a gift I want to give at Christmas time each year.

I want so much to wrap it up but yet I have a fear; they will not understand this gift, this gift of love and cheer.

So I just do the safest thing and buy it at the store, when what I really want to do would mean a whole lot more.

-Andrea Jacobsen, junior

Christmas

*Christmas is now a sales pitch,
A season only for the rich.*

*Gimbel's, Macy's, Penney's and Sears,
Have competed throughout the years.*

*Christmas lights come out in October
Store and street Santas rarely are sober.*

*There are thousands of Christmas trees in red, white and blue
But green spruce or pine, there are only a few.*

*Plastic holly with beaded berries
Glow in the dark Jesuses, Josephs and Marys.*

*Neon signs give off a bright glow
On white painted sawdust that resembles real snow.*

*Once upon a yesteryear
Everything was real and clear.*

*Now, it seems true to me
That Christmas isn't what it used to be.*

-Melissa Faia, sophomore

The Day after Christmas

*The Christmas cheer has gone away the tree is down —
all packed away.*

*The people walk
their frowns acute.*

*The season's through;
they count their loot.*

-Kira Heniford, senior

The Child

The child sits with confusion painted on her face.

*She tries to understand the world
as if it were a maze.*

She cannot quite see the things that used to be.

The Christmas trees and stockings are now ever so shocking.

The little girl who sheds a tear looks at Santa without any fear.

The tear was cut with no real reason except for the change of what once was a beautiful season...

-Gayle Silverman, junior

Christmas Time

*Christmas is a time to be good,
So Santa will bring the toys
he said he would.*

*Christmas is a vacation time to ski,
And a time to pick out a favored tree.*

*Christmas is a time to cuddle up by the fire,
And think about anything you desire.*

*Christmas is a time to be merry,
And let children dream of the Christmas fairy.*

*Christmas is a time to reminisce,
And think about the people you dearly miss.*

*Christmas is a time to be happy,
And whisper dear things to your pappy.*

*Christmas is a time to share,
And let people know that you care.*

Realtor optimistic about rent-back home sales

By JIM BARRETT

"IF I CAN'T get key legislators to approve of this type of program, I will eat my hat," declared G. Robert Henry.

A partner to Enos Fouratt, the Carmel realty and insurance broker, Henry spoke of an unusual financial plan the agency announced earlier this month. It was touted as a way retired homeowners could close the gap between escalating costs and their fixed incomes.

The advertisement, published as an "open letter" Dec. 8 in the Pine Cone, read in part, "Would you believe that you could end your financial responsibility for taxes, insurance and major maintenance on your home — and be paid a monthly income?"

In its simplest form, the homeowner sells to an investor who promises to rent back the house for a period of years. The monthly rent and period of the rent-back agreement would vary from contract to contract, Henry said.

The concept has aroused interest among investment

Ben Heinrich, an associate in the office who helped devise the plan, admitted the program would be unattractive to investors if substantial changes were made in federal tax laws. Investors, he said, would need the common tax benefits such as allowances for building depreciation, maintenance costs and property taxes to make the deal worthwhile.

Henry said the agency developed the program after a growing number of its insurance clients complained that home costs outstripped their incomes.

Carmel property owners were wowed in 1976 when the citywide assessment climbed 68.5 per cent. The jump resulted from a citywide reappraisal conducted by the county assessor's office. Another reappraisal is tentatively scheduled for 1979, according to County Assessor Donald Stewart.

Henry was asked why the Fouratt Agency plan was regarded as superior to conventional refinancing of a home. "Refinancing is doubtful for most seniors simply because they have a lack of income. The banks don't want to be in the real estate business. They don't want to refinance if someone is on a fixed income. Their only recourse if the owner falls behind in his payments is to take the house and they don't want to do that," Henry said.

IF THE FOURATT plan works properly, the elderly owner converts what equity he or she has in a home and, in effect, trades it for an annuity income. Under the rent-back agreement, the seller would carry the professionals, he said in an interview Friday, but it has been greeted by skeptical curiosity by many of the elderly in Carmel. Since the advertisement appeared, inquiries have been numerous but no sales that follow the plan have entered escrow, Henry said.

"IT IS A too good to be true concept," he said, asked why no deals have been reached. In Carmel, about one in five persons is retired. Many own homes and a substantial number long ago paid off their mortgages, he said. Henry said he is not surprised that the response has been one marked by caution.

Henry said he plans to explain the program to members of the California Association of Realtors and to court legislative support for it among key senators and representatives.

It came to America when immigrants from Germany settled in Virginia and Pennsylvania. The Presbyterian Christmas Eve worship is not in the strict tradition of the Moravian Church, but attempts to catch the inspiration which made them an effective force for God in the new world. The Love Feast includes hot rolls made from an authentic Moravian recipe.

On Christmas Day, the Rev. Deane Hendricks will give a sermon titled "When the Angels Were Gone," at 9:30 and 11 a.m. There will be no 8:30 a.m. service and no Sunday school. Children are invited to attend church with their parents. The Chancel Choir will sing.

JEWELRY HANDCRAFTED FOR YOU ...

OUR UNICORN is far less elusive but every bit as wonderful as the mythical creature, hand-forged in solid silver, with mysterious opal eyes, to brighten your day whenever he catches your eye. (The Topanga artist creates equally enchanting dolphins.) SILVER BRACELETS by Lee Taplinger are comfortable to wear, lovely to look at and reasonably priced.

TWO RINGS sculpted in 18 karat gold by Karl Lee of Big Sur embrace bright diamonds as naturally as they embrace your finger.

WEDDING RINGS by Karl Lee are handmade - not cast - of 18 karat gold in a variety of designs that convey the eternity of love with simple understatement.

THE WINGED SCARAB is both symbolic and beautiful, combining the metaphysical properties of silver, copper and gold with lapis lazuli, carnelian and handmade heishi beads. The craftsmanship, by silversmiths from Santa Fe, New Mexico, rivals the ancient Egyptians.

The gingerbread house caper

GERMAN LANGUAGE instructor Royce Tooker applies the confectioned caulking that holds the gingerbread house together. Watching the process is Laura Mayo.

Language, cooking come together for these local teens

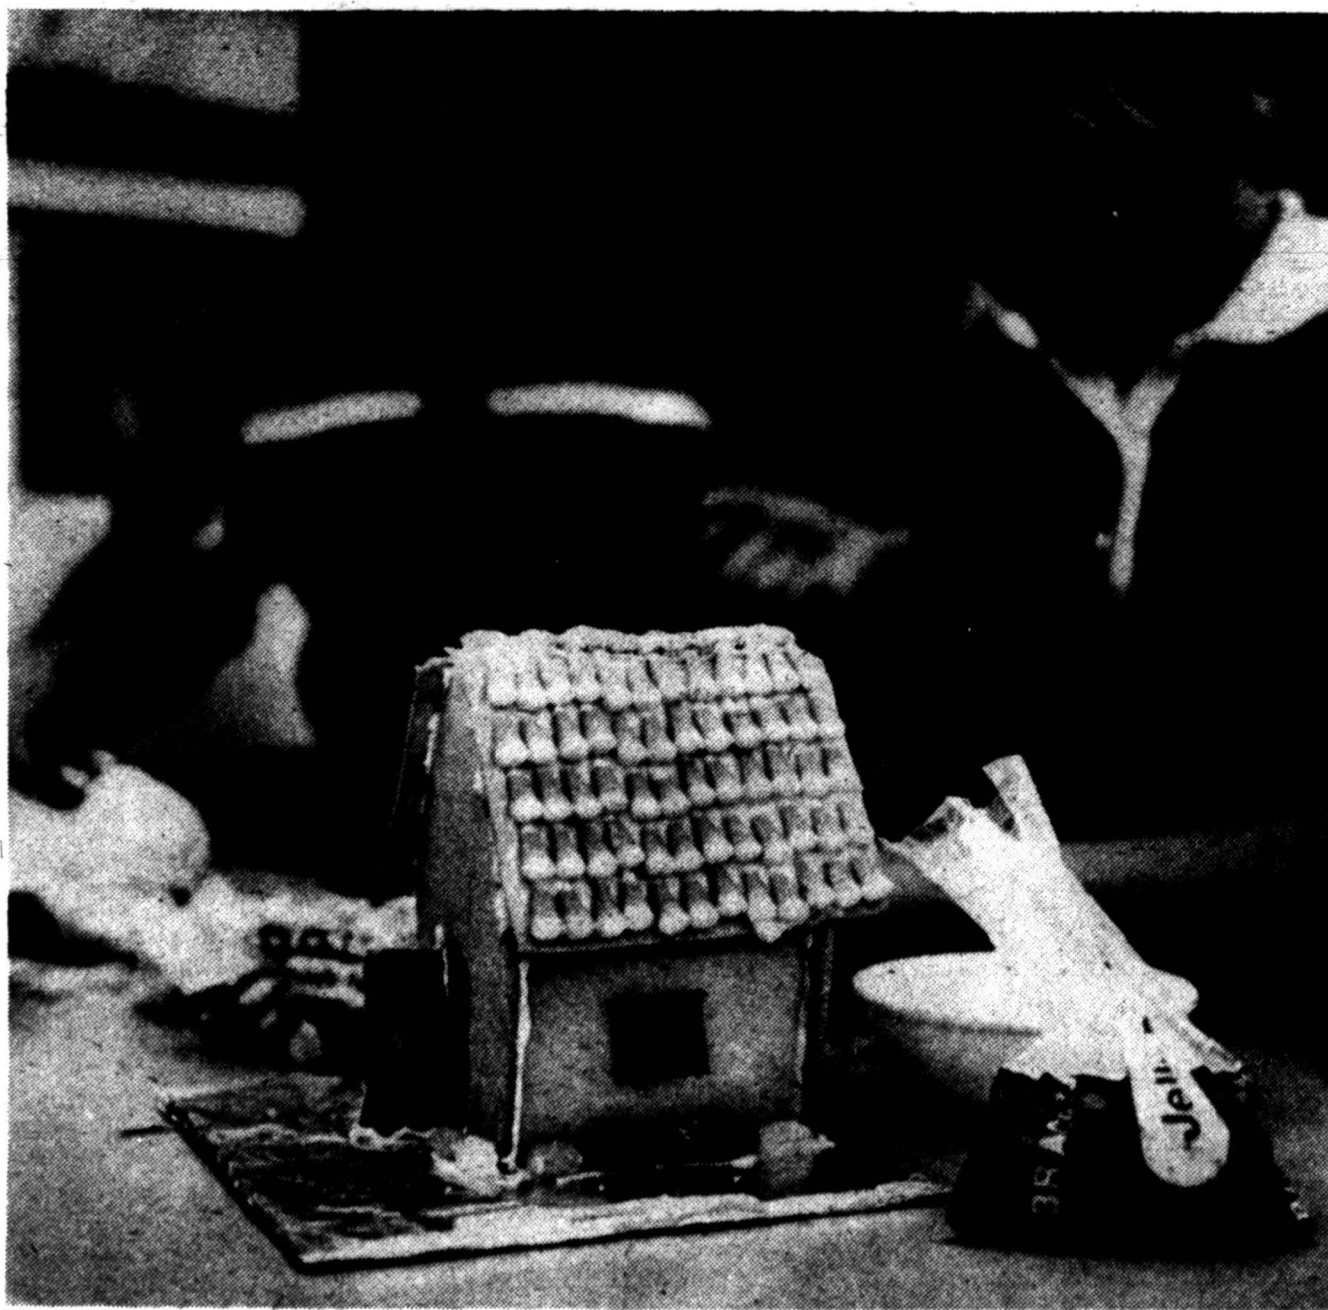

It might be hard to see the connection between the cooking and German language classes at the Carmel Middle School, but teachers Karen Pfeiffer and Royce Tooker found one and used it when two cooking classes and three German classes worked together for a week building the traditional German gingerbread houses for the Christmas season.

Tooker's recipe includes ginger, but the German term for this tasty holiday tidbit is "hexenhauschen," or little witch's house. The real flavor, however, comes from the major ingredient, honey.

Mrs. Pfeiffer's cooking classes were exposed to a new kind of holiday baking. They had to plan their project and budget their time with more care than usual and at the same time learn to share their kitchen with other students who had never been in a kitchen before. The language students used the gingerbread making as a stepping stone to the German fairy tale "Hansel and Gretel." First-year students hear the story in English with an introduction to German vocabulary. Advanced students hear the story in German and discuss the recipe, introducing them to ingredients used in another culture.

Upon completion, the 27 gingerbread houses were displayed in the school library and prizes were awarded for the most appealing houses as determined by a vote of the student body. Then the creations were delivered by the students themselves and the teachers to convalescent and nursing homes in the Carmel area to be enjoyed during the Christmas season.

For the sake of tradition, on the last day of school, one house per class was eaten during the Christmas festivities.

Barkeep's Yule serenade

CHRISTMAS CHEER finds unusual outlets. Take Frank Marseguerra, the bartender at the Hog's Breath Inn in Carmel. He has been amusing those who bend an elbow by playing carols on wine glasses. On his 11-glass, and thus 11-note, glass harmonica, Frank has sounded out "Jingle Bells," "Silent Night" and "Joy to the World." He adds varying amounts of water to each glass, which range from a full-size wine glass to a petite sherry glass. Wetting his index finger, Frank rubs the glass rims and produces — in most cases — sonorous notes for the carols. "It's like a kid's toy. You just sound it out," he says. By the way, Frank, 29, is a professional musician. He plays guitar at the Carmel Holiday Inn and at the Buckeye restaurant. (George T. C. Smith photo) financing and receive a monthly loan installment reduced only by the amount of rent agreed to at the time of the sale. For instance, if the monthly loan payment was $800, the senior citizen might expect anywhere from $200 to $600, depending on the rental amount paid.

"You have to absolutely guarantee the homeowner will not be put out of their home. Say he or she has a life expectancy of 10 more years according to the actuarial tables. Say he or she lives 20 years. Well, the contract of sale is written such that the seller cannot be put out in the 11th year," explained Henry.

He said the program requires no federal involvement aside from the existing tax incentives for an investor. Henry said it is designed for the elderly homeowner who is unable to receive aid from within his or her own family. "That should be the first place they turn," Henry said. "But, in a lot of cases, the children can't buy the house for one reason or another."

"We are tickled to death about it," Henry said. "There isn't a city in the country where it couldn't be beneficially utilized."

Blood drive on Friday

Accidents come with the holidays. For the Monterey Peninsula, that means more blood than usual is required by local hospitals.

The Red Cross Carmel Chapter is sponsoring a Holiday Blood-Giving drive Friday at the Carmel Holiday Inn, Rio Road and Highway 1, from 10 a.m. until 2:30 p.m.

Luncheon will be served to all donors at no charge. Santa Claus will visit and sitters will be available to donors.

Those not able to give blood are requested to donate cookies for the blood donors.

HOW TO WRITE A WANT AD

List the classification you want your ad to appear under in the form at right. Then start your ad with the item you have for sale, etc. Be sure to include your phone number at the end. To make your ad effective, describe your item fully including such things as weight, size, color, age, condition, etc. It is best to list your asking price; this will eliminate calls from people who are not prospective buyers.

Isn't it wonderful that Christmas to all of us is so different yet so much the same. It is a time when grandmothers can radiate the sparkle of childhood, when Christmases past become a blend of pleasant memories and peace on earth is a tangible goal. It is that one time of the year when people in all parts of the world set aside their anxieties and fears to reflect in their own way on what they have to be thankful for. The cherished thoughts of family, home and friends are with us no matter where we may be. And so at Christmas time we at Seven Cities want to wish you and yours a wonderful 1977 holiday season, one that will be happily remembered for years to come.

SERVING THE ENTIRE MONTEREY PENINSULA

TWAS THE WEEK before Christmas, and all through Carmel,
The carols were ringing, the motels were swelled.

The locals were snuggled in their cute Carmel homes, and the homeless were grumpy, like ten little gnomes.

But Brad is not sleeping in nightgown or cap,

He's got listings and land you'll buy in a snap!

You'll fly to your windows, throw open the sash,

And see ocean and pine trees, mountains and grass.

Then what to your wondering eyes will appear,

But Bungay and Earsley, Karen and Dave.

With speed and efficiency they'll help you to pick,

A home that will please even Jolly Old Nick.

More rapid than eagles your listings will sell.

You'll whistle and shout while your sale quickly jells.

On condos, on rentals, on bus. opps. and homes,

Brad and his buddies are very well known.

And then in a twinkling, you'll know you were right,

When visions of escrow are coming in sight.

Your worries are over, your house has been chosen,

Aren't you glad you're not elsewhere where everyone's frozen?

A bundle of listings they have at their desks.

Of all the homes listed, they'll get you the best!

Their eyes always twinkle, their smiles are so merry,

You'll be glad that you met them, you'll never be wary!

With Hunter's well known face, the nicely rounded Joanne,

Brad, Dave and Karen will find you a place.

With a wink of your eye, and a twist of your head,

You soon will be nestled in your merry homestead.

With little time wasted and lots of hard work,

Brad will fill up your stocking, your new life will perk!

And laying a finger aside of his nose,

And giving a nod, he will gaily propose

Just the right Comstock for you and your bunch,

And what better present, they'll love you so much!

And when you're all settled and he drives out of sight,

You'll hear him exclaim with sparkling delight ...

What has happened up to here

There just isn't much ground in Carmel-by-the-Sea, so what there is is subject to considerable dynamic action. The village itself is one mile square, though it spills over its borders with complete lack of ceremony into very attractive fringes which seem part and parcel of the whole.

Carmel Point, for example, is an unincorporated area of 266 homes which could only have attained its distinctive character through long and close association with Carmel. The same might be said of most of Carmel Woods, which is "in the county"; and Carmel Knolls, Carmel Views, Meadows, Highlands, Riviera and you-name-it. When one thinks of Carmel, he tends to include all of these as part of the family.

Geographically, Carmel is divinely favored. Its western boundary is the Pacific Ocean, and from sea level it rises gently (at some points steeply) to a height of 640 feet. Behind it on the inland side, the Carmel Valley rolls lazily between mountain ranges, narrowing like a funnel back to the Valley Village 12 miles to the east. To the north, the Carmel Hill slopes from a peak of 550 feet down to Monterey and its crescent Bay. And to the south, along cliffs dropping toward the rocky shoreline, lies Big Sur and a wild country penetrated only shallowly by four-wheel-drive roads which peck feebly at the mountains guarding almost 100 miles of rugged coastline.

Surprisingly, the official population of the village is only about 5,000. If you'll forgive a phrase like "Greater Carmel" (you shouldn't), the surrounding fringe adds about 3,000. Then the hovering horde of visitors - Carmel has more than 60 motels and lodges - swells the daily complement to 20,000 or more. There are about 3,500 dwelling units (we prefer to call them cottages, castles and Comstocks) in the area. And buying and selling them occupies the time and attention of 32 real estate firms, each with three to 15 or more associates.

If you're any good at mathematics, that figures out to a pretty active market. And it reinforces our thesis that you'd better have a good guide to steer you through the traffic.*

Carmel is Christmas

For most of us who live here, the Carmel Experience began as a love affair with our Village and the beauty of its surroundings. Some of us dropped what we were doing elsewhere and came instantly. For others of us Carmel was a dream for years; and during these years, it was our privilege to be a part of the hopes and dreams of many of you. Your delight in our ocean, our beaches, our trees, our fascinating shops, our cultural and recreational advantages has added a special measure of happiness to our own lives as we helped you find your home, or the perfect site on which to build the house of your dreams.

Carmel IS Christmas... a place where we light our community tree on Ocean Avenue in the middle of December while the high school choir sings carols. Afterwards we go trooping around town in the crisp evening air to look at the gaily decorated shop windows. During the Christmas season, too, the Choral Society and the Symphony present, at Carmel Mission, memorable music, and all the church choirs and everyone else who loves to sing gather at Sunset Center to lift their voices in joyous Christmas melodies, and the very young carol for the very old in their hospitals, also for the ill at Community Hospital with its many beautiful Christmas trees, each decorated differently by the Pink Ladies.

Visitors and citizens mingle as they shop in our stores for handcrafted creations, exotic gifts from faraway places, and fine quality merchandise of every kind. Christmas, too, is fruit cake made by the brothers at the new Camoldoli Hermitage on the beautiful Big Sur Coast... the old-fashioned tree in its Victorian setting at Pine Inn, the Dickens Dinner at the Episcopal Church, all the other church suppers, bazaars and Christmas events, the perennial children in front of the post office selling handmade, sweet smelling wreaths with bright red bows, and the firehouse outlined in lights put up by the fire department volunteers.

Christmas also is the college students coming home for the holidays and calling greetings to one another along the length of Ocean Avenue... the Fair Ladies and their decorations made with love over teacups all year and sold for the benefit of many charities. It's the 39 Craftsmen and the BSI Auxiliary fairs at La Playa bright with Mexican folk art decorations in its lobbies, and it's also Christmas dinner at the Carmel Foundation, that unique adventure for those of us in our golden years... and the Youth Center's Santa handing out candy canes all over town.

And wrapped around the whole Carmel Christmas scene is the most fabulous gift wrap of them all: huge, translucent green waves trailing white spindrift manes as they sweep towards our silvery sand beaches and rocky shorelines to break into magnificent, snowy surf with the ocean as blue as angels' eyes out beyond; and on the hills and along the streets of our town, the evergreen of fragrant pines, friendly oaks and lovely cypresses.

Doesn't it seem to you that JOY has come back to Christmas this year? Maybe it's all the world's crises and turbulations which have made us re-evaluate, program back into our lives LOVE, the true spirit of Christmas, and to make us more grateful than ever that we are privileged to live HERE. We close this year with our hearts filled with gratitude for Carmel... and most especially for YOU.

Buses follow a holiday schedule

Monterey Peninsula Transit said this week Sunday-holiday bus schedules will be in effect on Sunday, Christmas Day, and on Jan. 1.

On Monday and the following Monday, Jan. 2, a Saturday schedule will be in effect. Line 22 to Big Sur will not operate on these dates.

Restaurant is vandalized

The Village Corner restaurant, Dolores and Sixth, was vandalized twice last week, according to police records.

Owner Aris Zavitsanos told police on Dec. 16 and Dec. 17 vandals uprooted patio plants and broke a vase outside the restaurant.

Zavitsanos told police he wanted to offer a $500 reward for conviction of the vandals, but police assured the owner they would keep a close eye on the eating establishment.

Delay granted on Cal-Am well appeal

Hearings on two appeals aimed at having well-drilling restrictions lifted at a pair of Carmel Valley wells were postponed last week by the Monterey County Board of Supervisors.

The appeals involve the Scarlett and Stanton Wells.

The hearings were rescheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 17, at 3:30 p.m. at the county building in Salinas.

The California-American Water Co. asked for the delay. The hearings had been scheduled for Dec. 13. The water utility seeks to remove a requirement that riverbanks within 2,100 feet of the wells be irrigated. When permits were granted for the wells in August and October, the irrigation requirement was stipulated in the permits. The firm claims the requirements are inconsistent with the terms of the permits on its other wells in Carmel Valley.

Irrigation would keep riverbank vegetation alive and minimize erosion along the banks, the County Planning Commission agreed when it granted the permits earlier this year.
